The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s misconduct and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom crosses home at suppertime, dressed in a good suit and looking very important. He has an audience of his admirers. During supper, Aunt Polly tells him that he must be skipped school that afternoon and must go to a place where the boys are to learn to read. Tom answers bull, and she asks him if his collars is still away from him. Aunt Polly is satisfied, and Tom goes out to play. Tom’s half-brother, Huck, has arrived in town. Tom has sworn the boy to secrecy and invites him to be his confidant. Tom and Huck eventually decide to release the sailors from the angry mob.

The next day, Tom goes out to wash the house, and they make him work the next day, Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Tom passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of metal plate. Tom almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and claps him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.
