The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s misconduct and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time to find that he has been skipped school that afternoon and that his uncle has forgotten to buy his clothes. Tom is not pleased. He is not a happy person when he is hungry and knows that his clothes are still away from him. His uncle is not pleased either. Tom’s uncle is not pleased at all. Tom is not pleased at all. Tom is not pleased at all.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Sam passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of invisible line almost always, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his task.

Tom comes home at sunset and is punished for his misdeeds. He will be skipped school that afternoon and wait tomorrow to be cool. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom goes out of the house into the street. The weather is hot and sultry. While wandering the streets, Tom spots the new arrival in town, Huckleberry Finn. Tom has warned the old man to disguise his face.
