The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects wistfully on Tom's youth and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time. He has been skipping school that afternoon and spent the morning in the woods and the afternoon in an old swimming hole. He is dressed in rags and looks dirty. Tom's half-brother, Sid, is also at home. He has been playing a prank on his father and has a bag of hickory nuts and money that he has stolen. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom has sworn the debt himself to dispose his father of these hickory nuts and money. He has also run away from home to avoid being whipped. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom observes the new arrival of Mark Twain, who is an adventure and eventually becomes the new owner of the Nicodemus store.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. His paces by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "white alley," a kind of mantle. His almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

Tom comes home at supper. He manfully tells all about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly is satisfied. Despite skipping school that afternoon and going swimming, Tom’s report is not at all bad and shows how far Tom’s mind is from learning and his heart is still upon buckets and fishing. But still, Tom’s half-brother, Huck Finn, is never one to be discouraged, and Tom is proud to have adulted and arrived.

Tom and the new arrival go fishing and eventually chased the newcomers all the way home.
